Draw a 'story map' to show all the different places that water travels to in the story. List the verbs the author uses for the water and add these in the relevant places on your 'story map'. Then add your own adjectives to describe each place you have drawn.

Write about what the water could 'see' in each part of the story shown and how it might be 'feeling'.

Using the words on your story map, write a poem.

Each line of poem to start with verb e.g. Swishing through the speckled pebbles.

Copy your poem into best handwriting and illustrate with your favourite 'splashes'.

FRIDAY

Listen to the book The Rhythm of the Rain

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=zldkKmxAGlw>

Look at your ideas for what the water could 'see' and 'feel' in different parts of the story. Pretending to be the water, write a diary entry to retell the story.
