I understand what the Domesday Book and survey were.
I understand how to conduct a survey and interpret the results.

The Domesday Book, commissioned by William the Conqueror 1086, was written up by one man and it is believed it took him 12 months to write. It is the first written record of wealth and land ownership. It is a valuable source of historical information. There are records of the questions the Commissioners had to ask such as:

- What is the name of your estate?
- Who held it in the time of King Edward?
- How many ploughs on the land?
- How many among men?

If you were to ask your classmates questions to create a survey of what life was like right now, what would you ask? Conduct a survey to create your very own class Domesday Book.
